

In the heart of the village of Wistow between Selby and York, The Fish Shop has an outstanding reputation with people traveling some considerable distance on a regular basis. They have an extensive menu for a village fish and chip shop and since it was taken over a little over a year ago by Arty Laws and his wife they have increase the range available and added some interesting and unusual specialities. You've heard about the battered Mars bar, how about a batter Cream Egg?!

The menu includes everything you might expect from a village chippy plus Southern Fried chicken and a range of pizzas.

From Tuesday 14th of April 2015 they will be offering a range of specials for those who suffer from Coeliacs disease or are wheat intolerant. A new separated bank of fryers and a segregated serving area means there is no possibility of cross contamination. They have also been awarded 5 stars food hygiene certification by Selby District Council.
